POLITICAL MATTERS-THE READJUSTER MASS MEETING-SPEECHES BY MESSES. JONES AND RIDDLE BERGER-THE COLORED VOTE IN THIS CAMPAIGN-SPEAKING IN PRINCE GEORGE, [Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.] AUGUST 11, 1880.

The Readjusters held their mass-meeting last night, according to announcement, at the Academy of Music. The crowd was large, but in point of numbers and enthustasm did not equal those that were held at the same place, under the same auspices, during the exciting campaign of last fall.
The speakers of the evening were Colonel
A. W. Jones and Senator H. H. Riddleberger, of Shenandoah-the latter of whom was apparently quite unwell from re-cent frequent speaking at different points in this section. Their arguments covered nearly all the questions involved in the present canvass, but more particularly had reference to the claims that the Readjusters constitute the true Conservative party in the State, and that the "Funders' bolters from that party; that the Readjusters by the vote of last fall carried the State by a majority of over 21,000; that they have the exclusive right to the control of the des- where a handsome Hancock and English State and the casting of its electoral vote for President; that the Re- seventy-five feet high. AMELIA COURTHOUSE, VA., ?

August 10, 1880. S
Our quiet little village was visited last night by two desperate thieves, who entered the cook-room of Mr. G. H. Southall and then tried to enter his dining-room, but were frightened off. They also visited the dwelling of Rev. J. W. Blincoe and got some clothing. They then visited Captain Weisiger's dwelling, but were tright-ened off. They succeeded in robbing several chicken coops and hen-nests in and around the village. Search was made for them, and they were overtaken between place and Jetersville about 12 or 1 o'clock. One of them was captured, but the other fought like a Turk and made good his escape. Several shots were fired at him, but none took effect. The one captured had in his possession a lot of ladies' and gentlemen's clothing, chickens, and a small bard-satchel, which contain ed two pair of children's new shoes. The other one was armed with a single-barrelled shot-gun and a revolver. The gun was taken from him. The one captured gave his name as George Lindsay, and said he lived in Tenn., and that he had been to Richmond with a Mr. Goodman, who was not know his companion; that he only got with him yesterday evening. He is now in fail awaiting his trial. Several gentlemen are yet searching for the escaped thief, and n is to be hoped that they will succeed in capturing him.

THE GREENVILLE RAILROAD.

The Master Begins Taking Testimons

COLONEL A. S. BUFORD, MR. T. M. R. TALCOTT AND MR. C. C. M'PHAIL ON THE STAND-THE CASE ADJOURNED UNTIL TO-DAY TO AWAIT THE ARRIVAL OF WITNESSES.

Special to the Charleston News and Courier. COLUMBIA, August 9 - The taking of tes imony before Master Barnwell for reference to Judge Hudson in relation to the recent disputed sale of the Greenville and Columbia railroad was begun to-day at 12 o'clock. Mr. Corbin represented the South Carolina railroad, Mr. Rhett the Greenville and Co lumbia railroad, and Mr. Lord, General T. M. Logan, and Colonel W. W. Gordon the Clyde Committee petitioners. Testimony began in behalf of the petitioners, and of all persons excepting to the report of the Master.

Colonel A. S. Buford, president of the Richmond and Danville railroad, took the stand first and was examined by Mr. Lord. His testimony was as follows: Was present at the sale of the Greenville and Columbia railroad; observed the bidding between Messrs. Courtenay and Cummings; Mr. Courtenay's position was in front of the Master's table. A large crowd was present. During the early part of the sale each contestant made his bids openly, but later Mr. Courtenay nearly always indicated his bidby raising his hand. Mr. Cummings generally announced his bids by speaking, but sometimes did so by raising his hand; he spoke distinctly; his condition seemed to be one of considerable excitement, but he seemed certain as to what he was doing. At the last bid I was near Mr. Courtenay. who was probably about six feet from the stated, for a long time, when Mr. Courtenay made a bid of $2,393,600. It was cried by the auctioneer for quite as long a period as was knocked down to Mr. Courtenay. When this was done Mr. Courtenay first gave his name as the buyer, but immediately afterward furnished a list of names to the Master as those of the buyers, and made a memoas those of the buyers, and made a memorandum in a book he had. Then a package of money was handed the Master by Mr. Bryan. About that time Mr. Cummings appeared close by and said: "That is my bid," or "Is that my bid?"—cannot remember which term was used. Had not heard Mr. Cummings or any one else bid after the auctioneer had cried Mr. Courtenay's bid of $2,393.600, although was listening for one. Mr. Cummings seemed to be passing near the auctioneer's table through the crowd. When he spoke the Master refused to recognize him, as the road had been knocked down, but he persisted in his claim of baying bid last. Mr. Courtenay insisted upon his rights as purchaser, and protested against reopening the sile. After some little time the Master de-cided to reopen the bids. Mr. Courtenay or some one else requested the Master to require a forfeit put up by the opposing bidder, but the Master declined to do so. Did not see what became of the money Mr. Courtenay was overruled and the sale went on. Think Mr. Cummings asked, "I-that my bid?" several times during the early part of the sale. Mr. Cummings was absent during part of the sale; once with permission of the Master, and bidding was

Was watching intently for Mr. Cummings to bid after Mr. Courte nay had offered $2.393,600. Think I was nearer the Master than Mr. Cummings, and should have heard had he bid.
